

PhD course

LEGITIMATION OF NEW INSTITUTIONS AND POLICIES

Course date: 6-10 September, 2021
Venue: Aalborg University
Credit: 5 ECTS

Deadlines:

DL1: Essay submission - August 02, 2021

DL2: Essay acceptance - August 09, 2021

DL3: Registration and payment of the course fee - August 16, 2021

How are new institutions and policies legitimated? Who or what legitimates? This PhD course introduces and explores how new institutions and policies are legitimated. The purpose of the PhD course is to contribute to PhD training through helping doctoral researchers understand how the institutions and policies that often shape societal behaviours emerge and are legitimated. It explores institutional theory within the umbrella concept of newness, aiding their understanding of the written and unwritten 'rules of the game'.

Participation fee is 300 EUR. Each participant is responsible for his/her own travel and accommodation.

This is a generic PhD course is organised and delivered by the Adam Smith Business School, and hosted and accredited by the Aalborg University Business School.

The PhD Course is part of the LNETN project that is implemented by a consortium of four beneficiaries: Aalborg University (Denmark), Halmstad University (Sweden), University of Glasgow (Scotland) and University of Oulu (Finland).

How to apply: To start the application process, please go to application section on the course website:
<https://www.tbrp.aau.dk/interdisciplinary-doctoral-training/lnetn-new-institutions-policies-legitimation-phd-course/>

