The PhD supervisor training course in ‘Authentic Leadership’ is a professional development training for PhD supervisors which aims to facilitate the development of their leadership authenticity, that eventually carries forward to the supervised candidates. Ultimately, leadership authenticity enhances the quality of doctoral education making it more fulfilling for the candidates and supervisors as well as more impactful for society at large.

Syllabus:

- DAY1: The need for Leadership Authenticity for Academia
- DAY2: Practicing Authenticity in Supervision process: How do we supervise?
- DAY3: Integrating Authentic Leadership into PhD learning process beyond supervision.

This course is part of the Erasmus+ project titled: ‘International Entrepreneurship Network for PhD and PhD Supervisor Training (IETN)’ that is implemented by a Consortium of five universities: Aalborg University, Denmark; University of Tartu, Estonia; Linnæus University, Sweden; LUT University, Finland and University of Siegen, Germany.
