Mon, May 14 Workshop 1: Developing semester, module descriptions, incl., learning objectives and outcomes; knowledge, skills, competences.
Coordinator/moderator: Henrik Find Fladkjær.

Tue, May 15 Workshop 2: Project idea generation.
Coordinator/moderator: Steffen Jaschke.

Here the discussion may evolve around 3 types of the project work (Kolmos 1996), building on Workshop 1, including the issues and challenges of progression:

- 1) Assignment project: characterized by a considerable planning and control by the teachers/supervisors. in an assignment-based project the 'problem and the subject' as well as the methods are chosen beforehand.
- 2) Subject project: characterized by the subjects chosen beforehand. The students have a free choice either of a problem within the subject or the problem will be given and the students have a 'free choice among a number of described methods'.
- 3) Problem project: is based on problems as the starting point - means that the problem will determine the choice of disciplines and methods which correspond to the original idea of a problem-oriented learning process where the students have to start with a problem and analyse it, find fundamental solutions to the problem, choose the right solution and outline strategies for implementation.

Wed, May 16 Workshop 3: Student evaluation and staff evaluation methods and techniques.
Coordinator/moderator: Tamara Riehle.

Thu, May 17 Workshop 4: Management and administration of study programmes, semesters, and modules.
